

"I Must Dissent." Why?

November 03, 2008

Excerpt:

"Since our first year in law school, we have been told that dissenting opinions have no persuasive effect. However, as can be seen, there is very good reason to question that notion. Dissents can expose disagreements in the law and may even propose better law. A dissent may change not only the minds of fellow judges on the panel, but also the minds of future judges. When the use of a dissent is limited to when it is most meaningful, what is today's dissent could be tomorrow's majority. And that is why a judge sometime has to say, "I must dissent.""

Read here.

Authored By

Sylvia H. Walbolt

Related Practices

Appellate & Trial Support

Estates, Trusts and Probate

Labor & Employment

Mass Tort and Product Liability

Real Property Litigation

Securities Litigation and Enforcement

White Collar Crime & Government Investigations

©2024 Carlton Fields, P.A. Carlton Fields practices law in California through Carlton Fields, LLP. Carlton Fields publications should not be construed as legal advice on any specific facts or circumstances. The contents are intended for general information and educational purposes only, and should not be relied on as if it were advice about a particular fact situation. The distribution of this publication is not intended to create, and receipt of it does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship with Carlton Fields. This publication may not be quoted or referred to in any other publication or proceeding without the prior written consent of the firm, to be given or withheld at our discretion. To request reprint permission for any of our publications, please use our Contact Us form via the link below. The views set forth herein are the personal views of the author and do not necessarily reflect those of the firm. This site may contain hypertext links to information created and maintained by other entities. Carlton Fields does not control or guarantee the accuracy or completeness of this outside information, nor is the inclusion of a link to be intended as an endorsement of those outside sites.