Overview

Derek Harris is a commercial litigator and trial lawyer. Derek has tried cases in the areas of product liability, health care, business torts, and real estate in Florida, Georgia, and Alabama. He also has extensive experience with class action, commercial contract, construction, and creditors' rights litigation.

Derek has served as lead counsel on cases in multiple areas of law and provided legal assistance through all phases of litigation including discovery, motions practice, mediation, and bench and jury trials. His practice focuses primarily on complex commercial litigation, defending manufacturing clients in product liability litigation, and defending hospitals in health care litigation.

Derek received an "On the Rise" award for lawyers from the Daily Business Review in 2017 and the Daily Business Review's "Most Effective Lawyers" award in 2016. Derek was recognized by the Atlanta Business Chronicle as a "40 Under 40 Up & Comer" and by Florida Trend's Florida Legal Elite as a 2014 "Up & Comer." He is a member of Class V of Leadership Florida's Connect Florida program, and a 2011 Fellow in the Leadership Council for Legal Diversity's Fellows Program. Derek has served as an associate editor for ABA Litigation News, and has been actively involved in many bar and civic organizations. Much of his pro bono work has involved child advocacy, including representing children in juvenile court with delinquency, early intervention, and educational neglect issues; mentoring; and helping them get on track to achieve academic and personal success.

Experience

- Defended asbestos, automotive, safety system, talc, and tobacco manufacturers in product liability actions in state and federal courts. Achieved clients' business goals by working collaboratively to design and implement effective litigation strategies.
- Represented hospitals in contract, defamation, and fraud cases. Obtained favorable results through dispositive motions, mediation, and trial.
- Represented banks and financial institutions in multiple receivership cases. Obtained appointments of receivers to manage business assets following evidentiary hearings.
- Represented construction companies and general contractors in construction defect, commercial contract, lien, and bonding matters.
- Represented national banking institutions in commercial and residential foreclosure cases. Obtained favorable results through dispositive motions, mediation, and trial.
- Represented a corporate director in a lawsuit filed by the director's former employer asserting claims for breach of fiduciary duty, fraud, negligence, civil conspiracy, conversion, unjust enrichment, and disgorgement. Resolved case through mid-trial settlement.
- Represented corporate officer in litigation to prevent insider sale and transfer of corporation's assets. Obtained appointment of receiver following trial.

Representative Cases

- S. Fla. Fair & Palm Beach Cty. Expositions, Inc. v. Joseph, 256 So. 3d 875 (Fla. 4th DCA 2018) (trial and appellate counsel in first impression case involving sovereign immunity and fair associations, case resolved after successfully establishing client's entitlement to sovereign immunity).
