Overview

Kenneth Forward is developing his practice in business litigation. As a summer associate at the firm, he researched matters in a range of practice areas, including real estate, consumer finance, product liability, and construction. He also drafted complaints, motions, and discovery requests in commercial litigation matters.

During law school, Kenneth was a student attorney in the Housing Policy Division of the George Washington University Health Justice Policy & Advocacy Clinic. There, he led a policy briefing with the Congressional Hispanic Caucus on protections for residents of Section 8 and HUD-subsidized housing. He was also a judicial intern to the Honorable Steven Key of the Boston Municipal Court.

Before law school, Kenneth was a business analyst at Accenture Federal Services and Home Depot.
