Overview

Garth Yearick has extensive experience in antitrust litigation, complex commercial litigation, and product liability litigation.

Garth is a part of the firm's antitrust cartel recovery practice, and in this capacity, he represents a range of corporate clients in multidistrict litigation in federal courts across the country.

He has also represented drug and medical device manufacturers, chemical manufacturers, and other product manufacturers in personal injury actions in state and federal court.

Garth also has handled a wide variety of commercial litigation matters, including breach of warranty claims, Florida Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices claims, trade secret claims, consumer class actions, and other statutory claims and business torts. He also has experience in litigating commercial claims involving unique issues relating to computer technology and internet website development.

He has also served as appellate counsel in matters before Florida's Third and Fourth District Courts of Appeal and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit.

Garth has served as an associate editor, executive editor, and editor in chief of the ABA Section of Litigation's Litigation News publication. He has written more than 30 articles for that publication on a variety of topics.
