

Revisions to the 2007 AIA Contract Documents

February 04, 2008

By: Scott Pence Excerpt: "The American Institute of Architects ("AIA") produces the most widely used standard construction contracts in the nation and has done so since the late 1800's. Typically, the AIA revises their standard documents every ten years or so. The AIA recently released the latest version of their standard construction contracts in the fall of 2007. While there are numerous substantive changes to the 2007 AIA documents, this article discusses two of the more significant changes related to the dispute resolution provisions."

Authored By

Scott P. Pence

©2024 Carlton Fields, P.A. Carlton Fields practices law in California through Carlton Fields, LLP. Carlton Fields publications should not be construed as legal advice on any specific facts or circumstances. The contents are intended for general information and educational purposes only, and should not be relied on as if it were advice about a particular fact situation. The distribution of this publication is not intended to create, and receipt of it does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship with Carlton Fields. This publication may not be quoted or referred to in any other publication or proceeding without the prior written consent of the firm, to be given or withheld at our discretion. To request reprint permission for any of our publications, please use our Contact Us form via the link below. The views set forth herein are the personal views of the author and do not necessarily reflect those of the firm. This site may contain hypertext links to information created and maintained by other entities. Carlton Fields does not control or guarantee the accuracy or completeness of this outside information, nor is the inclusion of a link to be intended as an endorsement of those outside sites.

