

The Impending Cookie “Crackdown”: Irish Data Protection Commission Expected To Start Enforcement of Its Cookie Guidance This Fall

September 08, 2020

Following its Guidance issued on April 6, 2020, the Irish Data Protection Commission signaled its intent to begin enforcement against companies who fail to adhere to the Commission’s guidelines on the use and management of consent regarding cookie technologies. With the impending effective enforcement date of October 6, 2020, companies should step back to take stock of their cookie practices.

- Express Consent Reigns Supreme. Companies cannot rely on implied consent. The individual user must be required to take some affirmative action to give their consent.
- User Interface Design Around Cookies – The DO’s and DON’Ts. The Guidance issued by the Commission provided some concrete directives around cookie consent and user interface design including the following:
 - DON’T use pre-checked boxes for individual user consent to your company’s notice regarding its privacy and cookie practices.
 - DON’T set any “slider” options to “On” as the default.
 - DON’T use cookies as individuals review and decide if they want to consent to your privacy policies or cookie notice.

- DO pay attention to web accessibility guidelines. If your site is not designed to allow for individuals with visual impairments to actively engage with your granular privacy and cookie choices, you could face scrutiny.
- DO provide both “Accept” and “Reject” options to individuals. Cookie management for individuals should be granular and provide meaningful choice.

The Irish Data Protection Commission does not stand alone in its provision of guidance around distinct requirements for the use of cookie technologies: similar guidance has been issued by the data protection authorities in France, Germany, and Spain, as well as the United Kingdom’s Information Commissioner’s Office (ICO).

Coupled with emerging regulatory requirements in the United States, such as Nevada’s cookie law and the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA), this fall seems to be the season to revisit compliance programs and cookie practices.

Related Practices

[Cybersecurity and Privacy
Technology](#)

Related Industries

Technology

©2024 Carlton Fields, P.A. Carlton Fields practices law in California through Carlton Fields, LLP. Carlton Fields publications should not be construed as legal advice on any specific facts or circumstances. The contents are intended for general information and educational purposes only, and should not be relied on as if it were advice about a particular fact situation. The distribution of this publication is not intended to create, and receipt of it does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship with Carlton Fields. This publication may not be quoted or referred to in any other publication or proceeding without the prior written consent of the firm, to be given or withheld at our discretion. To request reprint permission for any of our publications, please use our Contact Us form via the link below. The views set forth herein are the personal views of the author and do not necessarily reflect those of the firm. This site may contain hypertext links to information created and maintained by other entities. Carlton Fields does not control or guarantee the accuracy or completeness of this outside information, nor is the inclusion of a link to be intended as an endorsement of those outside sites.