

High Court Drops ‘Earthquake’ on Federal Water Protections (1)

January 24, 2022

Carlton Fields environmental attorney Neal McAliley was quoted in a Bloomberg article, “High Court Drops ‘Earthquake’ on Federal Water Protections (1),” discussing the Supreme Court’s decision to hear arguments that undermine the scope of the Environmental Protection Agency’s power under the Clean Water Act. “The decision to take this case is an earthquake,” said McAliley. “The Supreme Court is likely to resolve the scope of the waters of the U.S.” Read the article.

Featuring

Neal McAliley

Related Practices

Environmental Regulation & Litigation

