

Aaron Weiss Earns Business Litigation Board Certification from the Florida Bar

August 28, 2023

MIAMI, FL – Aaron Weiss earned his board certification in business litigation from the Florida Bar. Less than 250 of the more than 100,000 Florida lawyers achieve the distinction of being board certified in business litigation. Established by the Florida Supreme Court, board certification recognizes attorneys’ special knowledge, skills, and proficiency in various areas of law and professionalism and ethics in practice. Weiss maintains a national business litigation practice focused on telecommunications law, class actions, and consumer claims. He also frequently counsels insurance companies on complex coverage issues relating to class actions and other aggregated litigation. He frequently litigates class action cases under a variety of consumer protection statutes, including the Telephone Consumer Protection Act (TCPA), the Florida Telephone Solicitation Act (Florida Mini TCPA), the Florida Telephone Solicitation Act (FTSA), the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), and more. He routinely defends companies sued in data breach class actions and counsels insurers on issues related to cyber claims, and has significant experience in both prosecuting and defending against intellectual property claims, often in cases involving novel technology.
