Overview

For more than 30 years, Dan DeCubellis has provided clients with solutions to real estate and business problems. His practice focuses on agreements and transactions for clients whose real property is intrinsic to the production of their products or revenue, and he has extensive industry experience representing governments, mining ventures, utilities, and commercial lenders.

Dan typically handles real estate and business matters involving long-term and broad-based representation of and counsel to multinational, regional, and local businesses, municipal electric utilities, governments, commercial property owners, commercial developers, manufacturers, professional firms, and commercial lenders.

Dan is board certified in real estate by the Florida Bar. He is co-managing shareholder of the Orlando office.
