

What the Heck is Happening in California? An Update on California's Privacy Laws

CYBERSECURITY AND PRIVACY | TECHNOLOGY | FEBRUARY 12, 2021

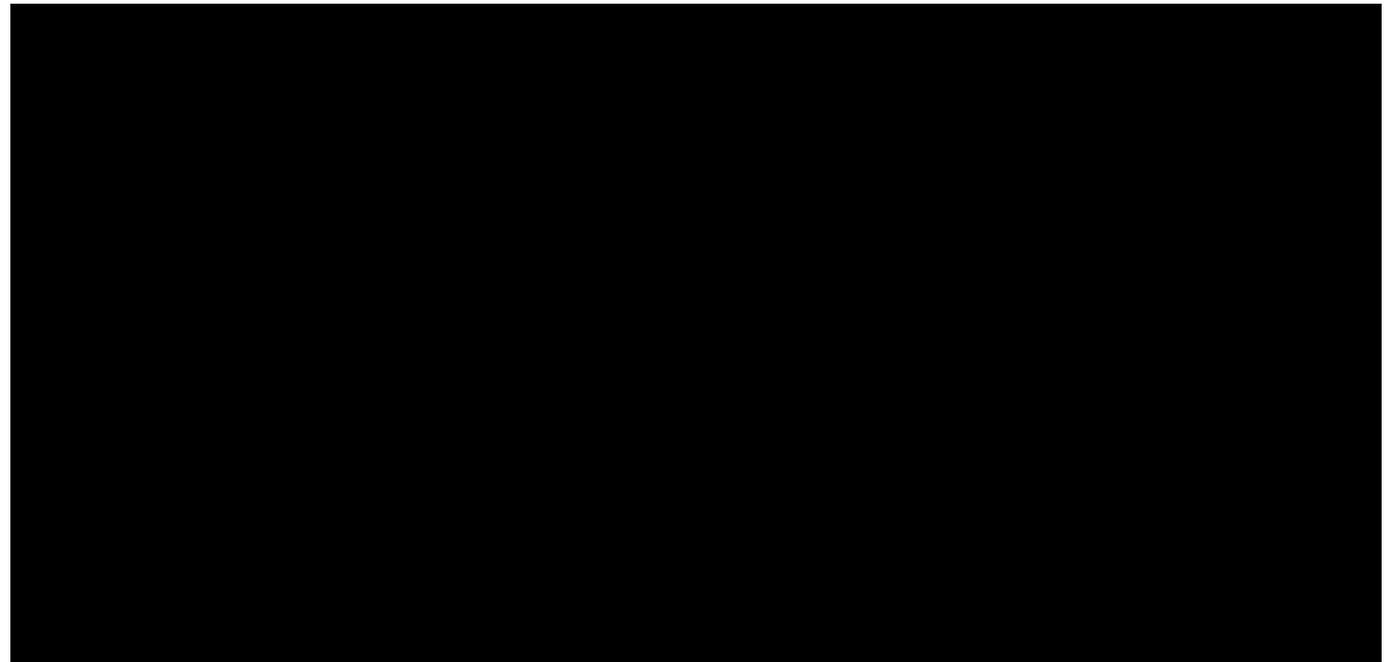

Joseph W. Swanson

Steven Blickensderfer

Christina M. Gagnier

In a period of less than two years, the California privacy law landscape has changed dramatically. With the effective enforcement date of the CCPA in January 1, 2020, to a new privacy law, the California Privacy Rights Act (CPRA), passed by California voters in November 2020, as well as a new Attorney General on the horizon, California will certainly be a place to watch in 2021.

Carlton Fields privacy and cybersecurity attorneys cover all aspects of the recent CPRA, how the CPRA and the CCPA correspond to one another, and what to expect for CCPA enforcement in the coming year.

The panelists also provide practical advice and takeaways for companies to consider as they continue to adapt to California's shifting standards.

©2020 Carlton Fields, P.A. Carlton Fields practices law in California through Carlton Fields, LLP. Carlton Fields publications should not be construed as legal advice on any specific facts or circumstances. The contents are intended for general information and educational purposes only, and should not be relied on as if it were advice about a particular fact situation. The distribution of this publication is not intended to create, and receipt of it does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship with Carlton Fields. This publication may not be quoted or referred to in any other publication or proceeding without the prior written consent of the firm, to be given or withheld at our discretion. To request reprint permission for any of our publications, please use our Contact Us form via the link below. The views set forth herein are the personal views of the author and do not necessarily reflect those of the firm. This site may contain hypertext links to information created and maintained by other entities. Carlton Fields does not control or guarantee the accuracy or completeness of this outside information, nor is the inclusion of a link to be intended as an endorsement of those outside sites.