Overview

Nathaniel Foell is a litigator who handles challenging legal issues whenever they may arise in litigation, whether that be spotting a rarely-litigated subject-matter jurisdiction defense at the outset of a case, crafting jury instructions on a novel issue as the case proceeds to trial, or briefing a tangled question of personal jurisdiction when the case is on appeal.

At the appellate level, Nathaniel has briefed cases before federal and state courts of appeals, including the United States Supreme Court. He clerked for the Honorable David F. Hamilton of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

At the trial level, Nathaniel has a broad background in complex commercial litigation. He has experience not only with motions practice but also with developing a factual record and engaging with expert witnesses. He approaches the discovery process with a focus on two aims: minimizing costs for his clients while at the same time maximizing their chances of prevailing at class certification, summary judgment, or, if necessary, trial.

Nathaniel has significant experience litigating class actions, including class actions related to cybersecurity, food labeling, health insurance, automated calls, and drug pricing.

Nathaniel maintains a robust pro bono practice with a focus on criminal justice matters. Most recently, he represented an indigent client asserting excessive force claims in a federal jury trial. He has earned awards and recognitions in Florida, Washington, D.C., and New York for his commitment to pro bono service.

Experience

Appellate Litigation

- Argentina v. NML Capital, 573 U.S. 134 (2014). Counsel for trade association as amicus curiae in support of respondent in a foreign sovereign immunity dispute. Respondent prevailed, with the U.S. Supreme Court holding that the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act does not limit the scope of discovery available to a judgment creditor in a federal post-judgment execution proceeding against a foreign sovereign.
- Lifsey Real Estate and Holdings v. Starwood Capital Group L.P., Case No. 2D19-669, 2020 WL 865066 (Fla. 2d DCA Feb. 21, 2020) (per curiam). Counsel for defendants. Plaintiff argued that the trial court erred in a number of respects, including on a tangled question of personal jurisdiction, by dismissing plaintiff's claims with prejudice. The Florida Second District Court of Appeal affirmed the trial court's dismissal of plaintiff's claims.

- Zubik v. Burwell, 136 S. Ct. 1557 (2016). Counsel for health policy experts as amicus curiae in support of respondents in a dispute regarding the Affordable Care Act's contraceptive coverage mandate, and in particular the adequacy of the mandate's accommodation for non-profit religious employers with religious objections to contraceptive coverage. The U.S. Supreme Court requested supplemental briefing. After receiving that briefing, the Court vacated the judgments under review and remanded for further proceedings.
- Reed v. Stephens, 574 U.S. 973 (2014). Counsel for eight retired judges as amicus curiae in support of petitioner. Petitioner sought U.S. Supreme Court review of a Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals decision denying his ineffective assistance of counsel claims. The amicus brief argued that the Fifth Circuit usurped the role of the trial court by resolving factual questions that had not been decided by the trial court, rather than remanding so that the trial court could develop the factual record and evaluate that record in the first instance. The Supreme Court denied the petition for a writ of certiorari.

Class Actions

- Defended Fortune 500 health insurer in multidistrict litigation relating to one of the largest data breaches in history.
- Defended Fortune 500 food company against product labeling class action. Prevailed on discovery stay and dismissal motions.
