Overview

Greg Gilman has more than 15 years of experience as an executive, entrepreneur, investor and attorney. He represents clients in the entertainment, technology, and digital and new media industries, and counsels businesses at all stages of development, from startup to public.

Greg is co-founder, partner, and general counsel for Science Media Services Inc., which creates, scales and acquires successful digital businesses. He serves as general counsel for the entire constellation of consolidated multinational Science companies, and is responsible for all legal matters including corporate structuring and governance, debt and equity financing, commercial transactions, and M&A. Greg is also the co-founder and executive chair at RxVantage, the leading health care relationship management platform directly connecting health care practices with pharmaceutical and other medical vendors. As a company-founding entrepreneur and investor who has been involved in dozens of venture financings, he has a unique perspective and understanding of what entrepreneurs and funds need.

Greg has represented recording artists, social media influencers, producers, independent record labels, songwriters, screenwriters, and directors, including Billboard, Grammy, Clio, and Tony award winners. Additionally, he has represented numerous leading technology businesses, both nationally and internationally.

He has served as advisor or director of numerous venture-backed companies, including DocStoc, Tsavo, PlayHaven, and FunBits Interactive. He currently serves on the board of directors of several companies, including FameBit, HelloSociety, SMG, and Delicious.

Greg formerly served as a professor of law and director of the Center for Entrepreneurship and Technology Law at Pepperdine University School of Law, where he designed and taught courses in intellectual property law and licensing.
